Archeology

In Ojuelos de Jalisco it has been said people have been digging these stones up for many years. This page shows some digging and cave exploration near or on the sacred mountain of El Toro. Pieces are found all over Jalisco.

A video of the virgin ground before starting to dig. Many of the lead researchers and excavators of the area have told us that there is usually a unique rock formation or a cactus that marks where these stones were buried. Some use a pendulum. We are researching the magnetism these stones may produce.

The plains near El Toro

Not far from the sacred mountain there is many square miles of undeveloped land. In the next videos you will see some digging. It has been said the locals bury these objects and take tourists out to find them. I wanted to get a capture of virgin land being exposed with items as the result. This was not something I could find published anywhere. I had seen pictures like the ones in the next section. But actual start to finish digs with the site being shown in relation and surrounding areas! After making the website one of my closest friends of Ojuelos shared this with us. We cannot thank them enough for the sacrifice made here to provide us with this opportunity.

The unearthing

It's wonderful to see this start to finish, the roots, the dirt, the geography. This gives a much better light on what we are working with.

With hundreds of fakes being made to replicate what the locals find here, It is crucial we document this and show the virgin ground producing these stones.
